General Responsibility

The general responsibilities of the Division are:

- To act as the secretariat of the Commission on Human Rights and the Commission on the Status of Women and to assist organs of the United Nations, including the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council, the two above-mentioned Commissions, their subsidiary bodies, and various ad hoc commissions and committees when they deal with human rights and related subjects;

- To assist the Secretary-General in carrying out any work in the field of human rights arising from his responsibilities under the Charter, in carrying out the instructions of various United Nations bodies, and in assisting United Nations organs in developing the human rights programme;

- To provide other branches of the Secretariat with such technical advice with regard to human rights as they may need.

- To prepare studies, working papers, and reports on various aspects of human rights;

- To prepare and publish the Yearbook on Human Rights;

- To assist in developing working relationships with specialized agencies, other intergovernmental agencies, and non-governmental organizations concerned with human rights;

- To handle communications concerning human rights and communications concerning the status of women;

- To assist in the negotiation and drafting of various instruments relating to human rights, and in formulating plans and procedures with respect to the implementation of human rights.

The Division is organized into an Office of the Director, five sections, and a Secretarial pool.
OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR

The Office of the Director:

- Plans, directs, and co-ordinates all administrative and substantive functions of the Division.

- Supervises the preparation of, and reviews, all studies and reports prepared in the Division:

- Directs the preparation for, and servicing of, United Nations bodies which the Division is assigned to assist;

- Deals with matters involving co-operation with the other Divisions in the Department of Social Affairs and with the Departments of Political and Security Council Affairs, Economic Affairs, Trusteeship and Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories, and the Legal Department.

Section I performs the following functions:

- Serves as the secretariat of, and assists, the Commission on Human Rights;

- Assists the Economic and Social Council and the General Assembly when they consider reports and recommendations relating to the work of the Commission on Human Rights.

Section II performs the following functions:

- Assists United Nations organs working on special aspects of the human rights programme assigned to it, such as freedom of information, forced labour, freedom of association (trade union rights), and the plight of survivors of concentration camps.

Section III performs the following functions:

- Serves as the secretariat of, and assists, the Commission on the Status of Women. Assists the Economic and Social Council and the General Assembly when they consider problems related to the status of women.

Section IV performs the following functions:

- Assists United Nations organs working on special aspects of the human rights programme assigned to it, such as prevention of discrimination, protection of minorities, abolition of slavery and servitude, and the problem of statelessness.
Section V performs the following functions:

- Assists United Nations organs working on special aspects of the human rights programme assigned to it, such as the repatriation of prisoners of war;

- Prepares the Yearbook on Human Rights and other human rights publications;

- Implements resolutions of the Economic and Social Council on communications relating to human rights;

- Develops human rights educational programmes, including the celebration of Human Rights Day, in co-operation with the Department of Public Information and UNESCO;

The Administrative and Secretarial Pool performs the following functions:

- Provides administrative and secretarial services to the Division.
